

Community Highlights 2017

Our language is caring. Our passion is medicine. Matters of the heart

Methodist Charlton commits to excellence in cardiology

Fit and active at 49 years old, Roger Williams seemed a picture of great health. But one morning in October 2016, he learned he'd had a heart attack — and it wasn't his first.

John Jay, MD, cardiothoracic surgeon on the medical staff at Methodist Charlton Medical Center, told Roger he had coronary artery disease and had probably had 12 or so very small heart attacks over the past few years. He recommended that Roger undergo triple bypass surgery the very next day.

Within a month of his surgery, Roger was back to workouts in the gym and had embraced a new diet and a passion for men's health advocacy. "I've reached out to all my friends and shared my story on social media and even TV," he says. He has also shared the story of his excellent experience at Methodist Charlton.

Another step in the right direction

Methodist Charlton continually looks for ways to improve patient care

At Methodist Charlton Medical Center, we're always looking for ways to better serve our patients. Here's a look at some of the ways we invested in a better patient experience in 2017:

● 3-D mammography.

In January, the Women's Imaging Center at Methodist Charlton began offering 3-D mammography, which provides a more enhanced view of the breast, especially when a woman has dense breast tissue. The result is more accuracy and more peace of mind for women.

● Pet therapy program. Hospital patients can enjoy visits from Cyan, a red standard long-haired dachshund, and his handler, Sandi Myers. Benefits of pet therapy include improved cardiovascular health, diminished pain, decreased anxiety, and motivation for faster recovery.

● Language of Caring. Employees began learning the Language of Caring. This proven communication strategy will help to ensure that patients feel valued and receive high-quality care.

● New support groups. Last year, Methodist Charlton started a new monthly Breast Cancer Support Group for women. Four local male breast cancer survivors also founded the Men 4 Men Support Group to help men face various health issues, including breast cancer and heart disease.

Twenty-four jump-start facilitators start Language of Caring training at a seminar on June 6.

HONORING SERVANT LEADERS
